PRIZE GUSHER IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA SPOUTS 12,000 BARRELS A DAY

PRIZE GUSHER OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

The little town of Montebello, in Orange County, California, boasts the prize oil gusher of Southern California. Here is shown the gusher in action. Twelve thousand barrels of oil daily, valued at $3.10 a barrel, is the yield of the Montebello prize. It is part of the Murphy-Coyote lease and is owned by the Standard Oil company.

Both Political Parties To Use Phonographs In Next National Election

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Phonographs will be used by both the Republican and Democratic parties in the approaching presidential campaign. It is announced, the plan embracing a program which will permit the residents of small towns and remote hamlets to hear the speeches of eminent orators at the same time that the records are released in the large cities.

The phonographic campaign will be opened on September 1, when records containing utterances by Attorney General Palmer, speaking for the Democrats, and others registering the speech of United States Senator Lodge, voicing the sentiments of the Republicans, will be released. These speeches will be reproduced at clubs, societies, headquarters, churches, noonday meetings and in the homes of the party workers.

Following the release of the speeches of Attorney General Palmer and Senator Lodge, other records will be distributed monthly and it is expected that the meeting places and homes throughout the country will fairly echo and re-echo with the words of the orators as conveyed by means of talking machines. The extent of the part which phonographs may play in the campaign can be estimated by the statement that two manufacturers of the machines are known to have more than 2,000,000 phonographs in use in the United States.

Among the speakers scheduled for phonographic oratory by the Democratic National Committee are President Wilson, Secretary of War Baker, Secretary of the Navy Daniels, former Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and William J. Bryan. Former President Taft, Major General Wood, Elihu Root, Chauncey M. Depew, and United States Senators Johnson, and Borah are on the list of speakers chosen for talking machine oratory by the Republican National Committee.

LIKES IDEA OF A NEW COURT HOUSE

W. T. MILLER COMPARES PONTOTOC WITH OTHER COUNTIES ON COURT HOUSE PROPOSITION.

Ada News, Ada, Okla.
Dear Editor:

I have read with interest, the items recently published in your paper in reference to a court house for Pontotoc county.

During the eight years I have been connected with the department of State Examiner and Inspector I have visited, one or more times, sixty-nine of the seventy-six counties in Oklahoma.

My business takes me into the court houses and I therefore am fairly well familiar with the conditions that prevail in those places, and I have noted with interest the condition of the several counties as these sixty-nine counties, all but twelve now have, or have recently voted bonds with which to build a court house, and of the twelve without court houses not more than five are as badly located, in temporary quarters, as Pontotoc. Taking the census of 1910 I find Pontotoc county with a population of 24,331.

It may be of interest to know that thirty counties with a smaller population than Pontotoc now own, or have recently voted bonds for building a court house, viz:

County	Population
Alfalfa	18,138
Atoka	13,808
Beckham	19,699
Blaine	17,960
Canadian	23,501
Cherokee	16,779
Choctaw	21,862
Cleveland	18,843
Coal	15,817
Craig	17,404
Greer	16,449
Hughes	24,040
Jackson	23,737
Johnston	16,734
Latimer	11,321
Love	10,236
McCain	15,659
McCurdin	20,681
Marshall	11,619
Murray	12,744
Noble	14,945
Nowata	21,223
Okmulgee	21,115
Osage	20,101
Ottawa	15,713
Payne	23,735
Pawnee	17,332
Rogers	17,484
Washington	17,484
Woodward	16,592

Shortly after statehood Nowata county lost some valuable records in a fire before building her court house. In 1913 a fire in Delaware county destroyed some valuable records in the office of probate judge and county treasurer, while in the office of county clerk not a desk, chair, record or scrap of paper was saved. Less than two years now since Roger Mills county lost her temporary court house by fire.

Will the good voters of our good county refuse to support a bond issue for the best investment Pontotoc county can make? I think not.

By all means let us have a good fire proof court house and jail.

Most respectfully,
W. T. MILLER.

AT LEAST NINE BALLOTS WERE TAKEN BEFORE A DECISION WAS AGREED UPON.

By the Associated Press

MT. CLEMONS, Mich., Aug. 15.—A jury tonight awarded Henry Ford six cents damages against the Chicago Tribune for calling him an anarchist.

Orvy Hulett, forman of the jury, said that they took "nine ballots that I can remember." The first one, according to Leonard Measel, another juror, stood 8 to 4 in favor of awarding Mr. Ford some damages.

Attorney Alfred J. Murphy, for Mr. Ford, said:

"The important issue in this case has been determined favorably to the plaintiff. He has been vindicated."

"Money damages were entirely subordinate and were not sought by Mr. Ford. He stands not only vindicated but his attitude as an American citizen has been justified after a trial which raised every issue against him which ingenuity and research could present. His friends are entirely satisfied."

Weymouth Kirkland of counsel for the Tribune, said:

"We consider it a victory for the reason that Attorney Alfred Lucking, in closing for Mr. Ford, stated that anything less than substantial damages would be a defeat for his client."

Jury Out Ten Hours.

The end of the great suit, which began three months ago, came when the lawyers and spectators had about made up their minds that they were in for a night of waiting, with a mistrial as the probable outcome.

The jury had been out ten hours when a resounding double knock was heard on the high old-fashioned door of the jury room.

Some of the lawyers had not yet returned from dinner nor had Judge Tucker put in his appearance. Bailiff Kelley went to the door and then hurried to Walter Steffens, the court clerk, and whispered:

"They're ready to report."

Mr. Steffens got Judge Tucker and the absent lawyers on the telephone and in ten minutes all was ready.

One Defendant Not Guilty.

Mr. Hulett first gave the directed verdict of no case against the Solomon News company, which distributed copies of the Tribune of June 23, 1916, containing the libel. The award against the Tribune was then given and the clerk recorded the following as the verdict:

"You do say upon your oath that the said defendants, the Tribune company, is guilty in manner and form as the plaintiff hath in his declaration in this cause complained and you assess the damages of the said plaintiff on occasion of the premises over and above costs and charges by him about his suit in his behalf expended, at the sum of six cents damage and you find that the defendants, Solomon News company, is not guilty as directed by the court."

Over in Five Minutes.

The jury acknowledged the verdict as correct and hurried from the court room. None would discuss their deliberations in detail.

The proceedings were over with astonishing brevity. The whole scene did not require more than five minutes. The jurors brushed past reporters and down the stairs, where they were soon followed by the lawyers. Judge Tucker then handful of spectators who had remained and the court attaches.

"WHY MEN DO NOT COME TO JESUS"

THIS WAS THE THEME OF EVANGELIST HAM AT THE TABERNACLE LAST EVENING.

Evangelist Ham spoke last night at the tabernacle on the subject: "Why men do not come to Jesus." He gave replies from the Bible. He said:

"There are men who have fought this revival who will not live to fight another. Calamity came to all the prominent men who opposed our work in our Fort Worth revival, and it was done quickly. Enemies of God and His church will be put out of the way and that right speedily. Men do not stay away from Jesus because of any flaw in his character or any fault of his divine nature. Some say they have stayed away from these meetings because I am rough in my preaching. Before I came to Ada they were fighting every preacher in town, but now they profess to love the preachers. Tell me, then, why did they want to shut some, even from among the pastors, out of coming to this shed for these services? Let me say to you preachers, you can't please God and the devil at the same time. You can't please certain people and God at the same time. Some preachers, wreck their usefulness in trying to please certain men and women. Men do not like Jesus because they are born of the devil.

"Men will not come to Jesus because they are incapable of grasping the truth. They are liars and love not the truth. The man who dreams for a revival to come to town is the man who does not want the public to know how vile he is. Such men have been knocking the church and ridiculing it and do not want it to stand for what is of real worth in the city. Revival influence places the church where it can count in the community and they can't make fun of it any more. Sin is back of all opposition to the church and her Lord. Sin and shame are near the surface in the lives of those who have fought this meeting. You who are blaming the hypocrites in the church for your not being a good man, let me say to you that it is your own sin—your own rotten life that is damning you, and not the hypocrites in the churches. Jesus Christ is the acid test of manhood. Judge your life by his standards and see where you stand.

"Love of money—ill gotten gain keeps many a man away from Jesus. You do not want to come clean with God because that would mean that you would have to straighten up with your fellowman. You would have to take back the goods you have stolen or the wife you have stolen from another. You could not run your business as you are running it if you came to Jesus. But, hear me, ill-gotten gain will finally secure its owner.

"Man fear keeps many away from Jesus. I knew a candidate who refused to accept Christ because he said his opponents in the race would make fun of him and say that he joined the church for a sinister purpose. Fear of men makes many a man lose his soul. Bless your heart, are you afraid the gang will ostracize you if you don't go the gait they go? Let a colony of lepers ostracize me. Let the goats refuse to allow me to graze with them. Let the hogs root me out of their wallow. It does me no harm. I saw an ant full of industry and a grasshopper at a ball. Later on the ant was the owner of a great business and the grasshopper was a speedy tramp looking for a job. He had waited for something to turn up, and the best thing that could have turned up was his toes. I heard of a boy from the country who got a job in London. He was a guest at a social function in the home of his boss. The lovely daughter of the home asked him to drink when wine was served, but he had pledged his mother with a kiss that he would not drink. She urged him to take a hand at the card table, but he declined for the same reason. By and by he was the chief owner of the business and the husband of the boss's daughter. Women always admire decent men and despise

"OUR DUTY TO OUR ENEMIES" TODAY

EVANGELIST HAM TELLS US
HOW WE MUST FORGIVE
THOSE WHO WRONG
US.

This morning at 10:00 o'clock, as per previous announcement, the evangelist took up a discussion of "Our Duties to Our Enemies," and spoke in substance as follows:

"The man who goes to a doctor or a lawyer for advice expects to follow it. God reveals his will only to those who are willing to do it. If any man wills to do his will, he shall know of the doctrine." Now, God's word is very plain and explicit concerning our duty to our enemies, both in and out of the church.

In Matthew xviii, 15-35, we are told to take a grievance first of all to the offender himself. Tell him; not somebody else. Discussion can only intensify antagonism. The more you talk about your grievance the more you will become embittered and the harder it will be to adjust the matter. The man who talks embitters his own heart. So we are to go at once, and as you go, pray God to give you grace and the spirit of love to win your brother.

"Ninety-nine of every hundred difficulties and misunderstandings could be settled in a few minutes if this rule were followed. But he will not listen to you, take others with you, and if he is still irreconcilable take the matter to the church.

If a man will not hear the church he has no business in the church. Let him be no longer a brother, but a publican. The man who loves peace will avoid discussion as far as possible. Expression deepens impression. That is why Christians should often testify for Christ and also why they should avoid factional talk. But if a faction maker persists, do not hesitate to discipline him.

"In Matthew xviii, 21, the Savior lays down the law of forgiveness on your part. Verse 15 related to your brother's duty to you; now he tells what is your duty toward him. He says you must forgive him even as often as seventy times seven, if need be. But you say you can't do that. Then you had better seek for more grace than you have; for Jesus says in that case 'Neither will your Heavenly Father forgive you your trespasses.' (Mark xi, 24-26.)

"Well, some say, 'I can forgive him, but I don't propose to have anything more to do with him.' Then, according to the principle of the mutuality of forgiveness, when you get to the gates of Heaven, St. Peter will say to you, 'God has forgiven you, but he doesn't propose to have anything more to do with you.' But the truth is, brother, you can never get to Heaven with malice in your heart. If you have gotten the worst of the matter and suffer wrongfully get your comfort, in I Peter ii, 19-24.

"Do you mean to tell me I must forgive the enemy who has lied on me? That is what Christ says. 'And the scoundrel who has slandered me?' That is what he says. If you are filled by his spirit, you will do (Continued on Page Eight.)

Women of Texas Crusade For Better Conditions For Women Who Must Work

By the Associated Press

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 14.—Mrs. Claude De Van Watts, director of the woman's division of the Bureau of Labor, is now on a tour which will include visits to Houston, San Antonio, Fort Worth, Dallas and Waco, to organize Women in Industry and Child Welfare committees.

The director of the woman's division is enlisting the aid of women's organizations and welfare associations all over the state in her work of enforcing labor laws pertaining to women and children. She has 2,700 of these organizations on her mailing list, and says that many of them already have started active campaigns in their cities.

Mrs. Watts has formulated standards which she and those co-operating with her will attempt to establish to regulate labor conditions of women and children. They are:

No woman should be employed for more than eight hours in any one day. The time when the work period begins and ends and the time allowed for meals and rest periods should be conspicuously posted in work rooms, and a strict record of all overtime kept.

Half holidays on Saturdays should be the custom.

Every woman worker should have one day of rest out of the seven.

At least three quarters of an hour should be allowed every woman worker for meals.

A rest period should be allowed in the middle of each work period.

No woman should be employed between the hours of 10 p. m., and 6 a. m.

To secure equal pay for equal work regardless of sex.

Continuous standing, sitting or heavy lifting should be prohibited and suitable seats provided for every woman employed and their proper use encouraged.

All machinery should be safeguarded and fire drills and other forms of safety regulations should be instituted.

Dress suitable for occupation, health and safety should be required.

Proper provisions should be made for lighting, ventilation and sanitation, and comfortable and adequate dressing rooms provided.

No work should be given out to be done in rooms used for living or sleeping purposes, or in rooms directly connected with living or

Farmers Blamed For High Prices By Jobber In O. C.

By News' Special Service

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 15.—Blame for the high cost of groceries was placed squarely on the shoulders of the farmers and producers by a prominent Oklahoma City jobber and wholesaler yesterday. He said there is absolutely no profiteering between the buyer and the consumer in the grocery trade.

Several years ago by government consent the canner was making a profit of 19 cents where today he is only making a profit of 12 cents, it was said. Prices paid the grower on peaches, apricots and tomatoes on town lots, however, have gone up from 100 to 300 per cent, according to the informant.

He says there is no profiteering in the city or state because competition makes it impossible. There are 275 grocery stores in the city, all of which would unite to keep one from doing an illegitimate business. There are ninety-one jobbing firms in the state to which the same principle will apply.

The wholesale price of beans is one of the very few that dropped in the last year or two. Beans are now $4 a hundred or 4 cents a pound less than they were during the first part of the war.

The jobber said he believed the sleeping rooms in any dwelling or tenement.

No child should be employed where the services of an adult can be used, and under no circumstances where it comes in contact with influences which may have a bad effect upon its physical, moral or mental condition.

No child should be permitted to work more than eight hours per day and under no circumstances should it be permitted to work after 8 p. m., or before 6 a. m.

The child who is prohibited from working should be in school, and the school should make every effort to interest the child so that he would postpone going into industry as long as possible.

TROOPS CALLED AFTER SEVERAL ARE KILLED AND MANY MORE INJURED IN ILLINOIS.

By News' Special Service

PEORIA, Ills., Aug. 14.—Illinois state militia, that just returned home from state riot duty in Chicago, are on their way here from several points in the state today as the result of an outbreak of rioting brought on by a strike at the plant of the Keystone Wire and Steel company. The troops were called out by Governor Frank O. Lowden following trouble yesterday when six persons, one a woman, were shot and a score injured in rioting.

In addition to the local militia the governor ordered troops from Danville and Springfield to proceed here and that companies in Rockford and Decatur be held in readiness.

Rioting continued practically all of yesterday between striking employees of the Keystone company, and deputy sheriffs guarding the plant. Employees of the plant went on strike eight weeks ago, demanding higher wages and a closed shop.

SHE'D WALK 20 MILES TO TELL OF TANLAC

Miss McKenzie Gains 25 Pounds On Taking Tanlac—Health Is Restored.

"I have gained twenty-five pounds on Tanlac and would willingly walk twenty miles to tell any sufferer how much it has helped me," said Miss Adela A. McKenzie, 426 Sixth Ave., South, Nashville, Tenn.

"I suffered from attacks of nervous prostration for eighteen months," she continued, "I had no appetite and after eating anything my stomach would burn terribly. I would feel hot all over, my pulse would seem to stop and then I would turn cold and numb. I was so nervous that I couldn't keep still and became so weak I could hardly get around."

"By the time I had finished my second bottle of Tanlac my appetite had returned and my troubles began to leave me, that numb feeling disappeared, the burning sensation passed away and now I can eat anything I want. All my nervousness is gone, I sleep like a child, and my health is now fully restored."

Morris Avers No Eggs Have Been Hoarded

By News' Special Service

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—Edward Morris, president of Morris & Company, said tonight he could not account for the government's seizure of 2,800 cases of eggs, his company had stored at Chattanooga, Tenn. He said branch houses draw from Chattanooga and the supply was sufficient for only seven days.

"We have four times the quantity stored at Nashville, Tenn., at which point we have no branch house," he said. "We also have an equal quantity at Atlanta. All these stocks were placed in storage during the heavy producing period of April, May and June, during which time two-thirds of the entire egg crop is produced. The stocks enumerated will not be half enough to supply our houses in that section during the fall and winter months."

"The present holding of eggs in warehouses in the United States is approximately 7,000,000 cases, less than 10 per cent of the entire egg crop of 1919 and the present is the peak of storage holdings."

"I notice Senator McKellar of Tennessee, in whose state our eggs were seized, introduced another cold storage bill today. I am not familiar with its provisions, but hope it

Separate Skirts for Late Autumn

The separate skirt steadily gains favor with American women because it is in line for advancement. It fits in with a new order of things in apparel, and that is, the demand for smart, dressy clothes that remain informal even though they are made of rich or dainty fabrics. But American women show very decided preferences in the styles they choose; their taste runs toward plain skirts of heavy silk fiber materials and skirts of georgette or organdy with wide hems and tucks. The trend is away from fussiness, but little clever originalities, in details of finishing and making, are all the more appreciated because of this. Paris has presented for fall, somewhat elaborate models of striped and plaid velvet and other materials and possibly, with the coming of cold weather, we may take up with these.

Here is a skirt for present wear of heavy white crepe meteor. It has the fashionable length and wide hem, the latter serving to weight the supple crepe so that it hangs beautifully. Its very wide, folded girdle is loose about the waist but its casual folds are tacked to place. It fastens at the side with snap fasteners under a narrow fold, but two large, handsome buttons make a fine pretense of usefulness placed over the invisible fasteners.

Little baskets are embroidered in brown wool on the skirt, and yellow figures, that may be translated, according to your imagination, into fruit or flowers, overflow them. These little baskets have handles of the brown wool which serve to camouflage the slit pockets that slip into the skirt at each side under them. Except for them there would be nothing unusual about this skirt but with them it has the one thing needful to put it in the class of distinctive models.

The blouse worn with this skirt is a tailored model of white crepe de chine, but these handsome skirts are very adaptable and are worn with much fancier blouses than the one pictured when occasion demands them.

SHERMAN PAPER LAUDS
NORMAL INSTRUCTOR

The high esteem in which Miss Anna Weaver Jones, who will have charge of physical education in East Central next year, is held in Sherman, is shown by the following article taken from the Sherman Courier. Miss Jones has had charge of physical education at the Normal for the past two summers, and the authorities of the local institution feel that the high compliment paid her by the Texas paper is fully deserved.

Miss Anna Weaver Jones has resigned.

Yes—everybody else is taking it just that way too.

To be sure she deserves her reward of faithful effort in the desirable position offered her as head of the department of physical education of the State Normal at Ada, Oklahoma. But what will the Sherman sch. do without her?

Her successor has not yet been chosen. And it will be no easy matter to fill the place she leaves vacant in resigning her position as director of physical education for Sherman public schools.

Build Up Department. Miss Jones virtually established this important department in our local school system; and has brought it to so high a degree of efficiency that the result she has secured has brought most generous words of praise from educators not of our own state merely, but from visitors from beyond its confines who have witnessed the work of her pupils.

Six years ago, fresh from training school herself, but with a big vision of what physical education means to the children of public school age, she convinced the board of education also of its value.

The new department of physical education was promptly created, and Miss Jones was installed as director.

It was not an easy work she had undertaken. But it was one into which she threw her whole being.

The little folks of the elementary grades were yet unspoiled, and readily accepted the folk dances and rhythmic plays as delightful variation of their work, all unconscious of course of the educational value underlying the games in which they revelled.

But with the older pupils many a bad habit of posture, etc., had to be overcome. Too often a spirit of listlessness had taken the place of that normal spirit of play every child should show. The play spirit had to be restored to those who had lost it. The boys and girls had to learn the lesson of rhythmic movement, and movement all together a grasp or a room as a unit.

But they learned it. And presently even those who had considered the work a passing fad could not but admit improvement in general discipline and in lessons too, which those with faith in the work knew could be traced at least in part to this valuable work of physical education at last secured for their children.

Co-operation was not full at first. Some patrons and others were not fully convinced for a time of the value of the work.

But with the demonstrations of last year, when boys and girls four years under the training of the director appeared in program of folk dance and gymnastic exercise, the attitude could but be proud of the high grade of work the department was doing, and could point with pride to the sturdy bodies of the youngsters which this training had helped to endow them with.

That it is invaluable in any school curriculum, and is a necessary part of the education of the boy and girl who would go through the school years at his best, can scarce be doubted with the evidence of leading educators and physicians of all nations in its support, and with the seal of approval not only recently given by our own President Wilson, but with direct insistence on this part that for the period of war and of reconstruction the physical training of our boys and girls be by no means neglected.

Summer Normal Work. Miss Jones' new position is the natural outcome of the excellent work she has done in the summer normals for the past few seasons.

President Gordon of the Ada Normal has been most generous in praise of her work of the past several weeks, and has expressed in no uncertain terms his gratification in securing her as a member of his faculty for the regular school year.

By no means content to rest on her oars even with the gratifying success she has already achieved, Miss Jones will take some special work in Red Cross work this summer, that she may broaden her service by the simple first aid measures and Red Cross instruction which should be a part of the equipment of every teacher.

The Ada State Normal, to which she goes in September, is one of the largest normals in Oklahoma enrolling more than one thousand students the past session.

Leather-Lunged. "Hold on, William!" commands a voice in patent-leather shoes, running down the stairs, all pink with haste.

WHO OWNS RIVER
BEDS OF KANSAS?

IN ONE CASE AT LEAST THE COURT DECIDED FOR THE CONTIGUOUS FARMERS.

By the Associated Press

TOPEKA, Kans., Aug. 14.—If water transportation ever existed in Kansas, it is generally recognized as non-existent now, and the question has arisen as to whether or not the state law defining six Kansas streams as navigable likewise should be shelved.

A district court decision in Pottawatomie county recently held the law specifying streams as navigable was obsolete. The court held that the Big Blue river, one of the six, which passes through that county, was not navigable. The decision now promises to have a bearing on other like cases.

The question at issue was whether or not the state or the farmers stream owned an abandoned section of river bed. According to state law of long usage, in case of an island or tract of land created by a river deserting its course, the state has the right to survey and sell such land to the highest bidder, the sum realized therefrom to be deposited in the state school fund. On rivers not navigable the owner of the abutting land owns to the center of the river channel.

In the Pottawatomie county case the decision was against the state which was enjoined from surveying and selling the land, the court holding it belongs to the owners of the contiguous land. So a question has arisen as to the ownership of a number of islands and deserted river beds on the rivers which are described as navigable by statute. These cases are referred to the state auditor whose duty it is to superintend the surveying and sale of such lands. At present State Auditor Fred W. Knapp has on pending petitions for the sale of islands in the Missouri river near Atchison, the Arkansas river near Arkansas City, the Kansas river near St. Mary's and several other small tracts caused by shifting river beds.

The navigable streams of Kansas, also, styled in the statute books as "the meandering rivers" of Kansas, are: The Kansas from its mouth to the Sixth Principal meridian, the west boundary of Dickinson county; the Big Blue from its mouth to Blue Rapids, Marshall county; the Arkansas from its point of exit to its point of entry in the state; the Neosho from the south state boundary to a point in Allen county; the Republican river from its mouth to the point where it crosses the north boundary of the state, and that portion of the Marias de Coyne flowing through Linn county.

NEW MACHINE INVENTED TO CATCH GRASSHOPPERS

By the Associated Press
TIPTON, Ind., Aug. 15.—Farmers in Tipton county are experimenting extensively with a machine which they hope will rid their clover fields of grasshoppers. The machine, which is the invention of County Agent Girard of Tipton county is of simple construction and can easily be constructed with a few tools according to the inventor.

The hoppers are caught in sails attached to the machine and are dropped into a cage from which they can be emptied at will. The machine can be driven through the fields without damage to the crops. The hoppers when caught can be fed to chickens, being excellent poultry food.

Optimistic Thought. Sunbeams of hope will drive away the mists of suspense.

Ardmoreite: Profiteers are running to cover. Prices in Chicago have gone down most appreciably since the high cost anti-began telling what they intend to do to the food swine. Prices are dropping everywhere. They will drop everywhere when the machinery of the federal government and the state governments gets good and ready for operation. But the principal causes of the drop will lie in the craven fear of the cowards who hoard and who hoist prices beyond the limit of common decency.

Miami News: With Uncle Samuel's sleuths on their trail the profiteers are beginning to hunt safer ground. The investigations of the cost of living problems in Chicago is beginning to show results, news dispatches tell us. And from Boston comes the word that leather dealers and shoe manufacturers, testifying before a grand jury probe into the high cost of living, predict that a decided drop in the price of shoes will come. Let's see, aren't these the same men who recently were predicting that shoes would soon sell for $25 a pair?

The gold of life does not lie hidden in mines; it sparkles in tiny sands all along the common path of every day. He only who gathers it bit by bit from daily duties and pleasures and opportunities and friendships will find himself the possessor of the real treasure at last.

WE had a complaint today in regard to charging 20c for 25 pounds of ice; if this has been done it was a mistake on the part of the driver, as we do not want you to pay more than our schedule rate.

Twenty-five pounds of ice at 70 cents per 100 pounds would be 17½ cents, and the driver could probably not make change for this amount.

The driver should give you about thirty pounds for 20 cents. Let me suggest, therefore, coupons would be considerably cheaper, that coupons be used—this would make 25 pounds of ice cost you 16 2-3 cents.

We have delivered written instructions to our drivers to discontinue this practice and to give back even change, as near as possible, where 25 pounds of ice is necessary.

CHICAGO PLANS DRASTIC ACTION AGAINST FOOD HOARDERS ACCORDING TO THE LATEST PLAN.

By News' Special Service

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—Wholesale confiscation of foodstuffs held in cold storage plants and warehouses in Chicago and proposed drastic action against food hoarders and profiteers that has sent prices on many commodities tumbling here, were expected to have still further effects today in the federal governments drive against the high cost of living. With reports of seizures of large quantities of food in several cities throughout the country, similar action immediately is forecast in Chicago and vicinity.

That Chicago was to be made the center of the fight against those who have sent prices of life necessities skyward was indicated today by the announcement by the United States district attorney's office that the first test case would be against the central sugar company of this city. Complaint has been made that this company has 70,000 pounds of sugar at Rockford, Ill., where it is asking 14 1-2 cents a pound.

United States District Attorney Clynne, who has been in Washington conferring with Attorney General Palmer will return to Chicago today, and it is expected the fight against profiteers will be launched through federal action immediately following his arrival here. Clynne is expected to approve warrants pre-

MAKE THE PENNIES BIGGER

When James Buchanan was president and tall beaver hats were in vogue; when gentlemen wore broad cravats and ladies wore hoop skirts the pennies they tossed to children were as big as quarters. But the cart-wheel coppers your grandfather got for keeping his lace collar clean were not as big in buying power as the pennies of today.

A penny then might buy a pastry, or ten of them take one to the Fair, but your great-aunt and great uncle couldn't have gone to a movie at any price.

Your great-grandfather may have driven the fastest horse in the country and paid a tidy sum for it. But the price of a stable of thoroughbreds would not have bought him a flivver.

Sixty years ago the ladies could go shopping for dry goods and buy silks that would make you green with envy, linens that were linens and broadcloths that beggar description. But what their favorite store did not have they usually got along without.

You can pick up your daily newspaper and in fifteen minutes you can know what the different shops are offering in fabrics, patterns, varieties and qualities that great-grandmother never dreamed could be gathered together under any conditions.

Times have changed, and so have merchandise and business methods. One of the influences that has helped to bring about so much of change, that has helped to multiply opportunities and increased the spending size of our pennies is advertising.

Every merchant, every manufacturer knows that advertising materially reduces selling costs by increasing the demand for and the distribution of the products of hundreds of thousands of mills. Indeed many of the things we count today as necessities or simple luxuries could not be made and sold at their reasonable prices except as advertising has created a broad market for them, making millions of sales at little prices and little profits.

And so you owe very much to advertising. You owe much to the people of yesterday who have read and been influenced by past advertising and so have made possible the economies and varieties and wide distribution of merchandise that you enjoy.

You owe present advertising a thorough reading. A greater familiarity with advertising, with advertisers and advertised merchandise makes continually for the increasing size of your pennies.

Telephone No. 4.

Since no political party in existence would have him, Joe Bailey has organized a party of his own.

"A VOICE FROM THE TOMB"

The published utterances of those advocating the organization of the "People's Democratic Party," read like the antebellum utterances of Calhoun. They sound for the world like the arguments of Yancey in the days when a great party believed that the federal government was only a subsidiary concern maintained for the convenience of the several states. But they read much more like the soliloquies of Marius wandering among the ruins of Carthage.

An appeal for states' rights today is like an appeal to Caesar. The conqueror of Gaul has slept for twenty centuries beneath the dust of the columns through which his victorious legions marched. State sovereignty received its mortal wound when it challenged the flag of the Union and vanished utterly from the courts of things living during the war that recently convulsed the world.

When congress submitted and the states adopted the prohibition amendment to the federal constitution they wrapped state sovereignty in its winding sheet and laid it away in the charnal house of time. Since the surrender at Appomattox nothing has remained of state sovereignty but an emasculated state of mind masquerading under the name of the police power of the states. That apocraphal power was given eternal knock-out drops by the prohibition amendment and the enforcing federal statutes that follow it. State sovereignty is dead today as the mummy pits of Egypt. And its funeral will be preached when the states that are ready for equal suffrage and already have it vote to force equal suffrage upon the states that are not ready for it and do not want it.

If the "People's Democratic Party" hopes to preserve the rights of state, it hopes to preserve something that already sleeps beneath the clouds of the valley. But if it purposes to wage a war of restoration, then it has an excuse for being. If it can convince the people of the republic that state sovereignty and local self government are necessary to preserve the life of the republic, its challenge and organization are justified.

Governor Robertson has gone to Salt Lake City to get some data on the high cost of living. If there is anything to learn on that sorrowful subject, it ought to be found in a city where every man has a dozen wives and eighty-odd children.

WHAT THEY HAD HEARD IS TRUE

There were a lot of people in Ada yesterday. They came from a number of different towns. They came to buy lots in the Chickasaw Addition. Many of them succeeded in getting lots.

They had heard of Ada before they came here. They had heard that Ada is one of the best towns in the state. They had heard that Ada is growing faster than almost any other town in the state. And when they got here yesterday they saw that what they had heard of Ada is true.

They bought lots because they were convinced of the truth of what they had heard. They bought lots at considerably more than the appraised value. They stood unshaded in a temperature that registered 103 in the shade. They were anxious to buy. They proved their faith in Ada by investing their money—which is, after all is said, the most substantial way of proving one's faith.

A Tulsan named Small is a republican candidate for United States senator. Small's chance of election is a small chance.

WHO WON THE WAR?

London Daily Mail: The war has been won by the heroism of France, who gained time for us to prepare, whose armies were foremost in the fight, and whose general was chosen for the supreme command by all the allies; by the devotion of Belgium, who was ready to sacrifice everything but her immortal soul; by the nobility of Italy, who in one of the darkest hours came to our aid; by the immense efforts of the United States, who entered the war at the critical time when Russia failed, and whose troops at Chateau-Thierry, in the breaking of the Hindenburg line, and in the Argonne, won such laurels last year. It has been won by the patience, tenacity and faith of the British peoples and of the splendid soldiers from home and the dominions, whom they sent into the field.

And Borah need not think he is the Samson of the senate just because he is equipped with the jaw-bone of an ass.

WIFE SAYS REALTY COMPANY HEAD IS AN UNFIT PERSON TO TAKE SONS

GEORGE M. EHRGOTT, JR.

Following revelations at a recent hearing in a New York court in the case of George M. Ehr Gott, president of the Broadway Realty company, on the charge of beating his 11-year-old son and namesake with a dog whip, Mrs. Mildred Ball Ehr Gott has begun proceedings to prevent her husband from having at any time the custody of her boy or any of the couple's other four children. Mrs. Ehr Gott is suing her husband for an absolute divorce, naming her own sister, Mrs. Edith Moss, of New York City. The boy in his affidavit says the alleged beating given him by his father occurred at Mrs. Moss's apartment. The boy says his father took a dog whip and struck him twenty-two severe blows over his arms and body, "breaking the skin, forcing blood to run and leaving ugly scars and wounds all over my body and arms." This photo of George, Jr., shows one of the scars left on his arm.

STORED LIQUOR DIFFICULT PROBLEM FOR COLLECTOR

By the Associated Press

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 15.—The large amount of whiskey stored in the four government warehouses in Indiana, offers a problem for Peter J. Krueyer, collector of internal revenue, who is in charge of the consolidated districts of the state.

Government bonded warehouses contain approximately 3,500,000 gallons of whiskey which it is impossible to transport by common carrier except for medicinal, sacramental, or experimental purposes in compliance with the national prohibition law, and as a consequence it cannot be shipped to other states where possession of liquor is not illegal, nor can it be sold in Indiana, according to the collector.

As a result the government is compelled to keep watchmen at the ware houses day and night and the distillers also are compelled to help police the warehouse and maintain a force of inspectors to watch for leakage, as the owner must pay the regular beverage tax of $6.40 a gallon for all that is lost. The lost liquor is technically considered to have been consumed.

God soon gets rid of those who are opposed to him.

No man has ever won any laurels by playing the moral coward.

No man dreads a revival but the man who does not want to become a Christian.

A man who loses the friendship of God by trying to please the public is a fool.

If there was anything wrong with Christ, the devil would have found it out a long time ago.

You wait for something to turn up, when the best thing that could turn up would be your toes.

If there was anything wrong with Christ there might be some excuse for not accepting him.

Some of you cuss your luck when it is only your harvest. You are reaping what you have sown.

Some of the people of Ada who have been fighting this revival will never live to fight another revival.

When referring to those who are opposing the revival Ramsay said: "Sometimes I wish that the limit on swearing was removed."

You may lose the friendship of the world by choosing the friendship of Jesus, but I never felt that I had lost anything when a colony of lepers ostracized me.

You show me a boy that is ashamed of his mother and I will show you a boy that is not worth spending money on. You had just as well wring his neck and throw him into the ash can.

"It's a great pleasure for me to deal with a fool," said Ramsay. "That's why I am with this company. Ham takes the smart people and I take the fool. I have no reference to members of the choir."

Speaking of an Ada citizen who wanted to see an itemized statement of the collections and expenditures of the revival, Ramsay said: "He has never contributed a penny to the meeting, and has made up his mind that he never will. It's none of his business how the money is spent. But I'll make him a fair proposition. I will give him an itemized statement if he will promise to meet me in heaven."

KANSAS CITY TO GET BIG BANK BUILDING

By the Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 14.—Authorization for the construction of a sixteen story building to house the Federal Reserve Bank has been received from Washington, and the contract probably will be let in October, according to J. Z. Miller Jr., governor of the bank.

The new building will be directly across the street from the present offices of the bank at Tenth Street and Grand Avenue, and when completed will be the highest building in the city. The bank plans to use ten stories of the building, three stories will be used by other government departments and three floors will be leased commercially. The cost is estimated at three million dollars, and architects plan that it will be completed by 1921.

Then at ten twenty-five we will open the doors of the church for the reception of new members. We want all of our new converts to be present. You who have church certificates will also be expected. The Divorce Mill

Only two divorce cases were filed in district court yesterday. G. W. Rose brought suit for divorce from Mary Rose. The petition alleges that the two were married in July, 1917, and lived together until February, 1918. Plaintiff further alleges that during the time he lived with defendant said defendant was guilty of various acts of adultery and that said acts of adultery were committed subsequent to their marriage. The plaintiff is represented by King and Crawford.

Lena Griffin asks for a divorce from her husband, Oscar Griffin. She alleges in her petition that they were married at Stillwater in September, 1917, and that he abandoned her wilfully in April, 1918, wherefore petitioner asks for a divorce. She is represented by B. C. Wadlington.

Come and let us make it a hundred new members in a single day.

For two weeks the pastor has been sick and a part of the time under the care of a physician. On this account he has not made as many visits as he otherwise would have made. Do not let anything keep you away. The reception at the church will close in time to reach the tabernacle at eleven.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

MR. AND MRS. MOLE.

"Good summer," said Mrs. Mole to Mr. Mole, as they met in a field.

"Ha, ha," laughed Mr. Mole. "That is a good joke. You've been reading newspapers or history books or story books or something."

"I haven't at all," said Mrs. Mole. "Then how did you ever hear of such an expression or saying?" inquired Mr. Mole.

"I heard some of the creatures last autumn when they were going to bed say—"

"You heard them say good summer when they were going to sleep for the autumn?" asked Mr. Mole.

"Dear Mr. Mole, wait until I finish what I have to say. When the creatures were going to bed they wished each other a good winter, because, they said, they were going to sleep for the winter."

"I heard them explain the saying to those who didn't understand. They said that when people went to bed they wished each other a good night, they hoped they would sleep well for night."

"So when the creatures went to bed for the winter they wished each other a good winter. That would be the length of time they would sleep for, you see."

"And it sounded to me like something very sensible. Why should creatures who want to have a good, sound winter's sleep wish each other only a good night. Why, that, to my mind, would be most insulting."

"Don't you think it would be insulting and rude to say to a creature who was going to sleep for the winter, 'Good night'! It would appear as though we only wanted him to rest for a night and then wake up and then sleep for another night perhaps, and have a generally restless time."

"Don't you think that would be rude? Don't you also think that the saying is a good one, Mr. Mole, saying good winter to creatures who go to sleep for that length of time?"

"To be sure I think it is a wise and sensible thing to say," replied Mr. Mole.

"Still," he added after a moment's thought, "I didn't understand why you said they had said good summer."

"I will explain," said Mrs. Mole. "Pray do," said Mr. Mole.

"I said that I was wishing you a good summer, just as creatures who were going to sleep for the whole winter wished each other a good winter. It was the same idea, only another season of the year; so I said good summer to be in the season."

"You see," Mrs. Mole continued, "we must keep up with the season and the time and all of that."

"When people get up in the morning they wish each other a good-morning and not a good-night. That is perfectly true, isn't it, my dear?"

"Perfectly true," said Mr. Mole. "I now know that you just pick up knowledge all the time and you don't have to study at all."

Mrs. Mole grinned, a funny little grin, for it is nice to be wise without any trouble, and it's very nice to appear wise to someone who doesn't know quite so much as you may know.

"Yes," said Mr. Mole. "I have a wise and learned little companion. I am glad you wished me a good summer; it is so much nicer to be wished that than a mere good-morning. Ah, we creatures who sleep all winter are very fine and generous."

"We don't wish each other a short good-morning, but a long good summer. I thank you for teaching me that."

"You're welcome," said Mrs. Mole, making a mole courtesy and telling Mr. Mole at the same time that she was making him a courtesy.

"I think," Mr. Mole said, "that in order to start off our good summer we had better have a little bite to eat, a little dinner; eh, my love?"

"I agree," said Mrs. Mole. "How about a first course of clover and a dessert of juicy worms?" he asked.

"Oh, delicious," said Mrs. Mole; "perfectly delicious."

"We'll have it at once then," said Mr. Mole.

And they had what they considered a most delicious meal!

Just So.

"Why have words roots, pa?"

"To make the language grow, my child."

The "Messenger" Is Dead; He Was Right With God

GEORGE A. SAXTON

By the Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 14.—"The Messenger," known to hundreds of thousands of tourists from all parts of the United States, is dead.

In the fifteen years that "The Messenger" fruged through the streets of Los Angeles, probably not more than that number knew his name was Christian Krober.

Hardly a tourist who came to Los Angeles in that period missed seeing the banners he carried—bearing such phrases as "Get Right With God," "Christ Is Coming," and "Are You Prepared to Meet Your Savior?" for "The Messenger" walked the streets fifteen hours a day.

The other day his few intimate friends missed him. They found him in his room. His hands were folded on his breast. A Bible lay beside him. And there was a little note:

"I am right with God and Man."

Nearly Fatal Accident.
The community was shocked Wednesday evening at news of a sad and almost fatal accident to Clarence Miller one of the best known and best liked young men of Sasakwa, and son of Houston Miller.

Clarence with a party of boys was sporting in the old swimming hole in Little River and dived off the bank, slightly mistaking his position his head struck a rock near the surface of the water and the blow rendered him unconscious. He sank to the bottom of the hole and quick work by his companions saved him from immediate death by drowning.

He was brought to town at once and received medical attention. He regained his senses and said he suffered no pain but was found to be paralyzed from the hips down. He was then taken to the Sherman hospital and last reports hold out a hope for recovery, although the exact nature of his injuries had not been determined at the time this was written.—Sasakwa Life.

News was received here today that Clarence Miller died at 8:30 o'clock last night at the Sherman hospital.

It will pay you to watch the Want Ad columns of the News.

Newspaper Man Not Discouraged By Misfortune

By News' Special Service

O. H. Hovey of Perry, Oklahoma, president of the Southern Printing Company and one of the pioneer newspaper men of Oklahoma refuses to be downed by hard luck.

Friends of Hovey at the state house have received a postcard from Hovey telling of a fire August 7 which completely demolished his plant, together with a valuable collection of first issues of many American newspapers, autographed portraits of presidents of the United States and a collection of paper money from all over the world. Here is the way Hovey accepts the loss:

"Are we discouraged, down and out? Not by a dam's height. In over sixty years in this vale of flu, hay fever and grass widows, we've had several hard jolts, but never a knockout blow. The wheels are already beginning to turn."

When Sneezing Was a Bad Omen.
Sneezing from remote times has been held ominous. Our forefathers went to bed again if they sneezed while putting on their shoes. A sneeze to the right was deemed lucky; to the left of evil portent. To sneeze near a burial place was unlucky.

Very Old Banknote.
The longest time during which a note has remained outside the Bank of England is 111 years. It was one of £25, and it is computed that the compound interest during that long period amounted to no less than £6,000.

George A. Saxton of Dorchester, Mass., is West Point's perfect young man. He is a physical and mental giant, and is rated at 100 per cent perfect. Saxton is six feet one and a half inches tall and weighs 210 pounds. Up to five years ago he was ill constantly; now he is in perfect health, cured by open-air life. He has won high scholastic honors at Yale and Harvard. He is eighteen years old.

TEXAS HAS ANOTHER SERGEANT ALVIN YORK

By the Associated Press

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 15.—Private Alfred R. Simpson of Travis county is another war hero compared by friends with the famous Sergeant York of Tennessee.

Private Simpson landed in New York with a distinguished service medal, personally presented to him by General Pershing, and a French Croix de Guerre. Recently he was notified by the local recruiting office that the Medito de Guerra, presented by the King of Italy, was held in Austin for him. Private Simpson, who has been discharged, walked fifteen miles to learn more of this new award.

Friends say he is of the same type as Sergeant York. He was born and reared in the hills of Travis county without advantages of an education. While fighting on the western front he captured a German machine gun nest single-handed, turned the guns on the advancing Germans and for two hours held them back.

Now Austin business men are raising a fund to allow Simpson to obtain the education which he was denied during his youth.

Mrs. F. A. Jones of Sulphur Springs, Texas, is here visiting her sister, Mrs. C. M. Long.

DAINTY FUR WRAPS

Ermine and Coney the Popular Summer Fashion.

Every Ounce of Weight Has Been Eliminated by the Manufacturers in the Seasonable Apparel.

About this season the gay little ermine begins to change his snow white coat for a darker one that will exactly match the bare rocks upon which he disports. For him spotless white ermine is out of fashion temporarily; but it is ermine all the year round—the whitest of white ermine—for Dame Fashion! She cares little for the brownish hue of summer ermine—the color that the little animal selects to match his rock background—and most of the dainty little wraps for summer wear have narrow facings of ermine at the neck line. A few of them are all ermine; but these, of course, are the very expensive models.

White coney is a humble first cousin of the ermine, which has managed to obtain a place in high society. It is not always easy to tell genuine white ermine from the soft and really beautiful white coney, though the latter fur is much cheaper to buy. Sometimes ermine and coney are blended in the same wrap and usually a sprinkling of black ermine tails is enough to convey the all-ermine suggestion to an average observer.

And, after all, what does it matter, so long as a wrap is really attractive and smart? Solid worth in dollars is not the measure of merit in a summer fur garment as it is in a winter one; grace, daintiness, modishness are the chief requirements of Madame Mode and fur that is good enough to pass muster and not suggest actual cheapness.

The Paris frenzy for short sleeves, which is actually such an obsession just now that in Paris a long sleeve is conspicuous, has brought the question of summer fur wraps into fresh interest. Even a chiffon sleeve is warmer than no sleeve at all.

Very comfortable, at such times, to cuddle into a fur wrap, even though the date be mid-July; but the fur wrap must be feather-light and not burdensome to carry about. The wrap builders have seen to this; the little fur pelisses and capelets for summer time are the daintiest affairs imaginable. The beautifully dressed skins, soft and supple as silk, are lined with chiffon or with silk mousseline, or very soft, lightweight satin, and summer fur wraps dispense with quantities of dangling tails and animal heads—or in fact anything that could add an extra ounce of weight.

When not actually in use they must be carried on the arm—and a heavy fur wrap on a warm day would be an abomination to carry about. But a little capelet of mole or ermine lined with shirred chiffon is very different.

SATINE IS AGAIN IN FAVOR

The newest thing in fashions is a dress made of that old, despised fabric—satin. It is really stunning, too. The color is warm yellow and the embroidery is in brown and tan. The ribbons are blue. The little hat is sheer cream lace.

Neckwear for Summer.

Manufacturers of women's neckwear are busy adding new ideas for summer wearing. Novelty waistcoat gumpies in organdie, net or lace have the major share of representation. Very narrow, dainty collars with matching cuffs, designed especially for wear with the oval neckline, are also regarded as promising. Filling-in orders in veillings indicate that many types are included in the current demand. Fancy combination meshes, all-over chenille dots and various new drupe veils are favored.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union)

LESSON FOR AUGUST 17

CHRISTIAN MISSIONS.

LESSON TEXTS—Acts 1:8; 13:1; 14:28.

GOLDEN TEXT—Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature.—Mark 16:15.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Matthew 28:18-20; Luke 24:45-48; Acts 26:12-20.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Helping everybody to know Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The whole world needs Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE TOPIC—Taking the Gospel to the whole world.

SENIOR AND ADULT TOPIC—Christian missions; aims and results.

I. The Obligation of Missions (Mark 16:15).

God saves men for a purpose. That purpose is to be laborers together with him in the salvation of others. Christ's parting message, yea, his final commission to the disciples was, "Go, preach the Gospel to every creature."

This obligation still rests upon the church. Since the command is to preach the Gospel to every creature, this obligation will obtain as long as there is one un-reached soul.

II. The Power of Missions (Acts 1:8).

This power is the supernatural indowment of the Holy Spirit. Missionary endeavor without the Holy Spirit is doomed to failure. Power to witness for Christ is the purpose of the gift of the Spirit. Success will crown the efforts of those who go forth under the leadership and power of the Holy Spirit. The Spirit was not given primarily to make Christians happy, but to make them strong to carry the Gospel to the heathen. However, those who go forth in this blessed service in the Spirit's power are truly happy.

III. The Scope of Missionary Endeavor (Acts 1:8).

The disciples were to begin their witnessing where they were when the Holy Spirit fell upon them—Jerusalem. But they were to go out from there to the "uttermost parts of the earth." This is the program for every disciple of Christ. Begin witnessing where Christ saves you, and then go to your neighbors next to you, and on to the remotest bounds of the earth. There is no such thing as "home missions," except that you begin at home.

IV. The First Foreign Missionaries (13:1-14; 28).

1. Who they were (13:2). Barnabas and Saul were selected—the very best two men in the church. The evangelization of the world is a task of such tremendous importance that it challenges the church to offer her best men and women. Since an institution is judged by its representatives, it becomes the church to put her most capable men to the front.

2. By whom sent (13:2, 4). The Holy Spirit chose these men and sent them forth to their work. The church at Antioch seemed to have deliberately planned this missionary enterprise. It was after prayer and fasting that the Spirit ordered the church to send forth these missionaries. It should be the business of the church to constantly seek the mind of God relative to sending forth laborers into the Lord's vineyard. The Spirit calls and sends men forth, but he does this through the church.

3. Some experiences of the first foreign missionaries:

(1) Withstood by Elymas the sorcerer (13:6-12). Elymas moved by the devil, sought to turn the mind of Sergius Paulus from the faith, thus barring the Gospel as it enters upon its widest mission of salvation. The most villainous act which one can commit is to turn a soul from the Gospel.

(2) Worshiped as gods (14:8-18). (a) The occasion (vv. 8-10). God accompanied the testimony of these missionaries by his mighty power. He wrought a miracle through Paul. At his call the inveterate cripple—one who had never walked—leaped up and walked. The cure was instant. (b) The method (vv. 11-13). They called Barnabas, Jupiter, and Paul, Mercury, because he was the chief mercer. They declared that the gods had come down in the likeness of men, and they brought oxen and garlands to offer sacrifice. (c) Their efforts (vv. 14-18). 1. The missionaries rent their clothes and ran in among the people, saying they were not divine but beings of like passions with themselves. 2. They urged the people to turn to God. 3. Paul stoned (vv. 19-22). Stirred up by wicked Jews from Antioch and Iconium, the rabble who a moment ago were worshipping are filled with satanic hate. Doubtless Paul remembered Stephen's experience. God raised him up and he went forth to discharge his duties as a missionary. Such men of courage are needed today.

Without Loyalty to Christ. A Christianity without loyalty to the Christ, as its motive and inspiration, may be likened to—well, may we say, our solar system minus the sun.

An Inward Beauty. There is an inward beauty, life, and loveliness in divine truth, which cannot be known but when it is digested into life and practice.—John Smith.

Take heed of the first stumble, for it is ominous; and at best there is a good step lost.—Benjamin Whitehead.

A Slight Mistake

By ALDEN CHAPMAN

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union.)

As Royce Merrill walked by the desk of the little hotel at Fordville where he had passed the night, and paid his bill the clerk as he placed the key in its box took thence a letter and tossed it to him. Very casually the transient guest observed its open flap and one-cent stamp, discerned that it was an advertisement and threw it on the floor without even glancing at its superscription.

An humble, modest sort of a young fellow was Royce Merrill. Brought up in the country and longing to get back again to rational village life, he counted two years' experience as the advance agent of a cheap show as so much time lost. Where he was headed for Merrill scarcely knew. He was drifting, half-planning, finding a position in some promising country town, awaiting any circumstance or adventure that might develop the future, and ready therefore as to anything that might come along.

As Merrill left the desk a heavy-set, unpretentious-looking man arose from his seat in the lobby, picked up the discarded envelope, read its address and chuckled. Then he started after Merrill. At a quiet street corner he overtook him.

"A word with you, if you please, Mr. Pierce Danton," he spoke, catching and holding Merrill's arm.

"Somewhat mistaken, aren't you," challenged Merrill. "That is not my name."

"Oh, yes, it is," insisted the other. "You just dropped this, didn't you," and he extended the envelope, and sure enough it bore the name he had mentioned.

"I am Zeb Brown, deputy sheriff of Princeton, twenty miles down the line. I've got the right to detain you, and as there are some explanations for you to make at that same burg, I'm going to take you there."

"You are exploiting a case of mistaken identity, my friend," observed Merrill, pleasantly enough and growing curious.

"Hardly. I don't suppose you will deny that this is your picture?"

The deputy sheriff extended a photograph and Merrill looked half startled, tremendously puzzled. The picture was that of a man marvelously resembling himself.

"All right," he spoke readily. "Go ahead. Do you arrest me?"

"I don't, unless you get too clever, or ugly. It's simple. Silas Bland, my friend, the hotelkeeper, sent me to hunt you up. It isn't so much the fifty-dollar board bill you ran up under false pretenses and skipped, as it is the wounded pride of his pretty daughter, Myrtle. She don't want you back because she cares for you, but she wants to see you punished for swindling her father and humiliating her. You went around Princeton hinting at the hit you had made with her—neighbors are gossiping. Now she is a deserted bride that was to be, and she will take her dainty, womanly way of showing her utter scorn in you publicly, and you will have to settle up that bill and suffer her contempt."

"Quite a romance. Pretty girl, of-fended dignity, and a scapegoat wanted. Once more Mr. Deputy Sheriff, I'm not the man you are looking for."

"It won't go," persisted the other doggedly. "I'll risk it."

It was an ideal town, Princeton. This was the first discovery Merrill made, then that the Atlantic hotel was a very attractive place of abode. As he was led into its reception room his official guardian sang out through an open doorway: "Mornin', Si!"

"Si" did not respond, but a very dainty, sparkling-eyed, lovely-faced girl of eighteen crossed the threshold. There was fire in her pretty eyes and an indignant flush upon her bonny cheeks. She advanced quickly, paused dismayed, scanned the smiling captive closely and fluttered forth:

"Oh, Mr. Brown, you've made a dreadful mistake!"

"I told our friend that back at Fordville," said Merrill, with a courteous bow to the young lady of engaging presence.

"Where's your father?" demanded the village functionary. "I'll see what he says about it."

"Down at the post office," and Myrtle Bland stole an interested glance at Merrill. "You can go after him while I try and apologize for the fearful blunder we have made. You won't run away while he is gone, will you, Mr. —?"

"Royce Merrill. Not I, Miss Bland," declared he.

"If any reasonable sum, or a month free of the best we have will fix up our hideous mistake," said honest Silas Bland, after he had heard the whole story, "we'll settle the score willingly."

"Why, it hasn't cost me anything," replied Merrill, with a jolly laugh. "I'll stay the month and maybe longer, for I like the town, but I'll pay for it. What this little trick of fate has led me into decidedly pleases me," as he looked at Myrtle and she at him with modestly-veiled eyes. "I'd ask nothing better than to clerk for a model hotel-ry like yours, Mr. Bland, if you are open for an assistant."

He was, and Myrtle looked grateful as he said so to this interesting young man who had so acceptably come into her life.

MAKE CLEAN UP CONTINUOUS

Campaign Should Last as Long as There is Rubbish to Be Removed or Painting to Be Done.

Don't call it a Clean Up and Paint Up "week" or, worse yet "day," so redolent of the annual bath. It is what its name implies—a campaign for cleaning and painting; and campaigns be it noted, are continuous things; they continue just as long as there is anything worth campaigning for; and in the Clean Up and Paint Up line eternal vigilance and industry are the price of liberty from dirt and disorder.

A real Clean Up and Paint Up campaign does not stop in a week, a month, or a season unless the town or community has reached the point where it can clean up and keep clean.

Hardly any phase of the Clean Up and Paint Up work except street and alley cleaning, can be more than fairly started in six days. Local campaign leaders in many cities have the right idea as shown in the name adopted in St. Louis in which "something is doing" every month in the year under the auspices of the St. Louis "Continuous Clean Up and Paint Up Campaign association."

Clean Engines—Fewer Bills

Dirt is undesirable, no matter where it is, but the average automobile owner has yet to learn that dirt on the running gear does more than merely cover up some painted or unpainted metal. Joints semingly as tight as a mechanic can make them allow dirt to pass through. The reason for the dirt being so undesirable near working parts of the chassis is not so much because it doesn't look well but because it eventually gets to a moving surface and starts rapid wear. If you own a watch with a screw back on it and you keep that watch in one of your pockets where odd things are put occasionally, just remove that screw back and notice the dirt that has worked its way in. I mention this merely to show that dirt gets into very small crevices quite easily.

Around the engine and other parts of the car there are supposedly tight joints in addition to actual openings. Take the front and cover, commonly called the timing gear case cover. Vibration may loosen a few of the holding nuts, allowing the cover to move away from the crankcase a small fraction of an inch. With an accumulation of dirt over the cover, some of the dirt is bound to get to the gear teeth. Dirt and lack of lubrication of front end gears are responsible for rapid wear and noisy operation.

Every owner ought to keep the engine clean by an occasional kerosene bath. Spray kerosene all over the engine and wipe off every bit of dirt you can. This goes for the crankcase as well as the parts that you can see when you lift the hood. Dirty oil, oil with sediment, old oil not changed for some time, are all causes of rapid engine wear.

How many owners ever see to it that the combination breather and oil filler is clean on the inside. In some designs there is every chance for a quantity of dirt to settle down on the inside and this is washed down into the crankcase when the next oil filling is made.

TIME REQUIRED TO LIFT RESTRICTIONS

The order of Cato Sells removing restrictions from half-blood members of the Five Tribes will not become fully effective for several months, according to information received from Congressman McKee. The Indian office at Muskogee must prepare and forward to Washington a list of half-bloods who are twenty years old and not mentally deficient. Upon receiving this list the commissioner of Indian affairs will issue to each half-blood a certificate of competency, whereupon his restrictions are removed.

This work will necessarily require several months. It will take time to prepare the lists at Muskogee and more time to prepare and issue the certificates of competency at Washington. There is still some red tape in the Indian office.

20 REPUBLICAN SENATORS READY

ARE WILLING TO RATIFY PEACE TREATY WITH RESERVATIONS, DEMOCRAT LEADERS ARE TOLD.

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Twenty Republican senators are ready to stand for "ratification of the peace treaty with reservations." Democratic leaders were informed today by leaders of the Republican group of reservation advocates. Republicans favoring reservations said that a poll developed that upward of thirty members of their party would support reservations along general lines laid down by seven Republicans if the treaty could be brought out of committee and ratified on that basis. Although administration leader Senator Hitchcock disclaimed any part of negotiations for a settlement, it was apparent that the move had reached proportions which might threaten the committee's plans for calling additional witnesses and prolonging the treaty consideration.

ROOSEVELT MEMORIAL ASSN. TO MEET AT DALLAS

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Friends of the late Theodore Roosevelt in Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and New Mexico will gather at the Hotel Adolphus, at Dallas, Texas, on Tuesday, August 19, to discuss plans for the campaign of the Roosevelt Memorial Association in these states. A fund of $5,000,000 is to be raised throughout the country in the week of October 20-27. The meeting at Dallas will be one of the ten regional conferences under the auspices of the Roosevelt Memorial Association.

The Association, of which William Boyce Thompson is president will erect a monument to Roosevelt at the National Capital and establish a public park at Oyster Bay, close to the Roosevelt home at Sagamore Hill.

The purpose of the Association and the scope and plan of the campaign will be explained to the gathering in Dallas by a representative of the National Executive committee, which includes in its membership governors of several states, former cabinet members of Mr. Roosevelt's cabinet and associates of Roosevelt in many fields.

The organization for the campaign in each of the five states which will be represented at the Dallas conference is now being completed, and it is likely that the full committees for each of the states will be selected when the Roosevelt workers come together at the Hotel Adolphus.

Hon. J. I. McCormick of Dallas, campaign chairman for Texas, will be among the Texas representatives at the conference.

Col. R. E. Twitchell of Santa Fe, the state chairman for New Mexico, will head the delegation from that state. James J. McGraw of Ponca City will direct the campaign in the state of Oklahoma.

Governor Charles H. Brough of Arkansas has accepted the honorary chairmanship of the Roosevelt campaign in that state. Wallace Townsend of Little Rock is chairman.

FIRST HUNDRED THOUSAND ARMY MEN SECURED

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—General Marsh, chief of staff, announced today that the first hundred thousand recruits had been secured for permanent service, and of these over sixty eight thousand were re-enlistments.

He knows your heart, and you have got to have the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace. And don't think any matter of difference is too small to grieve him. No sin looks small to God. To him sin is always exceedingly sinful.

"A woman at Fort Scott, Kan., told me once that she had been praying for years that her husband might be saved, and it seemed God would not hear her. I told her then there was something wrong in her own life. She studied a minute and said, 'Do you think this can be it?' Without waiting for her to finish, I said, 'Yes, I don't know what you are going to say, but whatever it is, be sure that is the trouble; for the Holy Spirit will always suggest it to you.'

"Then she told me there was ill feeling between her and a neighbor. She went over and asked forgiveness, and they mutually forgave each other and had a prayer. That day her husband came home to dinner and fell weeping on her shoulder and gave his heart to God, and came to the tabernacle that night and made his confession.

How to Love Your Enemies.
"As to our enemies, in Matthew, v. 43-44, our Savior tells us that our duty is to love them and do good to them; this has been a hard saying to many good people; because they have misconstrued it. It does not mean that you shall love your enemies as you love your mother or your child or your wife; but as you love yourself.

"How do you love yourself? Why, when you are hungry, you feed yourself; when you are in distress you relieve yourself, if you can; you don't circulate mean reports or say mean things about yourself; pray for him, just as you pray for yourself. Praying is better than quarreling. Jacob had to wrestle all night in prayer before he could be reconciled to Esau. Speak no evil, says Titus, iii, 2.

"I may in extreme cases become necessary and proper to speak evil of a bad man in order to give warning to a possible victim; but never for the sake of evil itself. And remember that there are three things that cannot even be joked about—the virtue of a woman, the character of a preacher and the credit of a bank.

"When you pray for your enemies don't just perfunctorily pray, 'Lord, bless my enemies.' That is too general and indefinite. Pray for each one by name. You can't do that long till you will begin to love every one of them.

"In my meeting at Garland, Tex., a man who had been talking against the meeting drew from me some rebukes so severe that he came to the tabernacle and told me he had come to lick me and was going to make me fight him or whip me. I asked permission to pray over the matter as I told him I never undertook anything without consulting the Lord about it. He told me to go ahead, but to hurry up. I prayed earnestly for him, and when I opened my eyes he was in tears, came forward and surrendered his life to Christ and became my fast friend, just as ready to fight for me as he had been to fight against me.

"The reason we haven't a thousand conversions here is God's spirit is grieved. What we have against each other is trivial in comparison with what he has against us. Why the old martyrs not only forgave the men who put them to death, but prayed for them as the flames rose around them.

"I have heard people say they could forgive a person who had wronged them if they thought him worthy. Suppose God was to apply that rule to us. Which of us could be forgiven? God doesn't forgive you for your sake; but for Christ's sake, and that must be your motive. And Christ is worthy in every case.

"And don't confuse suffering for Christ's sake with suffering for your own inconsistency. In that case you are not persecuted, but justly criticised.

"And after you have buried a thing don't dig it up again; let it stay buried. Drop it for good.

"Follow God's way, and my word for it and his word for it he will bless you."

"OUR DUTY TO OUR ENEMIES" TODAY

so. Amidst the agony of the cross he prayed for those who had so cruelly mocked, ridiculed, spat upon beaten him and crucified him. 'Father, forgive them; they know not what they do.'

"Read afresh the parable of the unjust steward, and note especially he says, 'If ye from your hearts forgive not, etc., neither shall you obtain forgiveness. You often pray, 'Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us.' If you would not have only partial forgiveness grant entire forgiveness yourself.

"The favors granted you may be in answer to the prayers of others and for their sake. Lot's delivery from Sodom was not in answer to his prayers for his own sake, but for Abraham's sake.

When You Are One at Fault.

"Thus far the discussion has been as to your proper course when you are the aggrieved party. In Matthew v. 23-24, the great Teacher instructs us as to our duty when we have given offense to our brother. He says you can't worship until you have sought out your offended brother and straightened the matter up with him, for your gift will not be acceptable until you have done this. And you can't get joy out of worship unless the spirit of God be with you, and that is why worship so often becomes a burden to you.

The greatest blessings I have seen come upon towns and upon churches have been when old contentions and antagonisms have been settled in the Christian spirit and old enemies have become reconciled.

"You can't fool God by any sort of dissimulation and false pretense.

IMMENSE PEACH CROP SHIPPED FROM TEXAS

By the Associated Press

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 15.—More than 1,700 carloads of East Texas peaches have been shipped so far this season, and the number is expected to reach 2,000 by the end of the season, according to R. S. Walker, agricultural agent here for the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railroad.

Last year's shipments for the entire season totalled 1,561 cars. Most of the shipments were consigned to eastern and northern markets although Dallas and Wichita Falls took care of some of them.

Truck farmers have had a successful season, according to Mr. Walker. Thirty-five carloads of sweet potatoes have been moved from East Texas. Other shipments include strawberries, blackberries, plums, cucumbers, canteloupes, watermelons, tomatoes and onions.

More than 435 carloads of watermelons have been shipped from this section and the present outlook indicates the number may reach 600. Mr. Walker says.
